

My report is that at the 20 block depth the robot collected 2 stacks of copper and half a stack of coal with a few units of iron along with this it ran into a vein of diorite along with a few stacks of cobblestone when we moved to 50 blocks depth it was a a little difference the iron and coal increased along with discovery of some precious metals however the cobblestone increased along with the darker cobblestone.